PRESENTS:

90 Minute Webinar with Dr. Sue Johnson

Working with Difficult Couples Using Emotionally Focused Couples Therapy

Couples therapy is difficult if you do not have a map to the potent emotional drama that is a couple fighting for their relationship. Even experienced clinicians may face challenges in their ability to address common barriers that prevent effective relationship repair. Successfully treating couples who have escalating interactions and potentially overwhelming emotions can prove as difficult as addressing emotional shut down and withdrawal. Sue will share the EFT targeted approach that helps shape effective and lasting change in relationship satisfaction and attachment security.

Learning Objectives

- 1) Identify one common barrier in working with escalated couples.
- 2) Describe one intervention for de-escalation when working with high conflict couples.
- 3) Demonstrate ability to articulate the relational pattern, or 'dance,' happening with difficult couples.
