Practical Ways of Distributing Mental Health Resources to Diverse Populations through Media and Social Media, and Other Digital Platforms

This course will explore practical ways of distributing mental health resources to diverse populations which are typically underserved and often marginalized. Cutting across these groups is a trending, equalizing phenomenon of digital access by these populations; this self-empowered access will be investigated with respect to utilization of social media platforms and other means of online access for locating and connecting with providers, resources, and specialized services offering mental, emotional and relational support.
